Importing publications from Google Scholar

The following slides show you how to import publication records from your Google Scholar profile to your ORCID profile.
Go to the Google Scholar: https://scholar.google.com.au/

Click on My Citations.

Follow the instructions in creating a Google Scholar profile if you don’t already have one.
Sign in using your Google account details

Sign in to continue to Google Scholar Citations
Select the publication records you want to send to your ORCID profile.
Select BibTeX from the Export menu.
You can change your selection to export all articles.
Click on the “Export” button.
Hover over the list of publications, right click and select the option to save the file.

Save the file to a folder that you select.

Note that the appearance of this page might vary, depending on which browser you are using.
Login to your ORCID profile.
Click on “+ Add works”.
Select “Import BibTex”.
Choose the file that you saved from your Google Scholar export.
Click on the “Save all” button or you can individually save the records that you want listed in your ORCID profile.
1. Check the number of Works has increased by the number you imported.

2. When finished, you can click on the “Hide link BibTeX” button.